Procrastination can be a GOOD TEACHER. Dan Sullivan, Co-Founder of Strategic Coach taught me that “procrastination is wisdom.” We all procrastinate. But why?

Because we have something we want to do, but we don’t have the capabilities and resources to complete it on our own. We procrastinate things that we dread, that don’t come easy or natural to us.

Instead of getting stuck in figuring out “HOW” to tackle what we’re procrastinating, we need to find someone to help us... someone who is naturally good at what we are putting off. Don’t beat yourself for procrastinating anything. It just means you need to find someone to help you. This principle has changed my life.

If one of the things you are procrastinating is related to your financial life or investing, my team can serve as your “WHO” and help you speed up the progress on your goals. Click the blue button below to schedule.

If you haven’t yet read the best-selling book “WHO NOT HOW” by Dan & Benjamin Hardy, PhD, go buy it today! It’s worth reading (or listening to) twice.
