I just have to say, people can be mean sometimes!

This week someone commented online to my colleague Neliza: "Your grammar is really bad."

Let's talk about Neliza for a minute. She moved to America from Brazil on a college volleyball scholarship and I hired her in January to manage Pacific Capital's social media pages.

I love what Neliza posted in response to that criticism. In her own words:

"I have to say: the moment I read that, I asked myself: 'Do I really know a second language?' and 'Should I keep posting in English?'"

In case you don't know, my native language is Portuguese. So I reminded myself of everything I've achieved so far while having 'really bad grammar':

- 1) It took me less than 2 years to learn a new language
- 2) I played volleyball on an American college team;
- 3) I got a Master's degree in the United States;
- 4) I work for an American company.

💡 I AM PROUD OF MYSELF 💡

Sometimes, these 'self-doubt' moments come to remind you how good you are (even if you still make some mistakes). If you think you're not good enough at something, remember that there are some people out there only wasting their time to drain your energy!"

What a great response and positive attitude! Neliza is amazing and does such good work. If you've seen our company Instagram, LinkedIn, YouTube, Twitter, or Facebook pages, you'll see she does good work.

And if you'd follow any of our company's social media pages, that would MAKE HER DAY!
